

Handheld

Bodypack

Bodypack orbeltpack transmitters

clip to the user's belt, body, guitar strap or instrument. They're about the size of a deck of cards and are most commonly used for instruments or for headset microphones. For instance, a drummer or keyboard player who sings will often use a headset vocal mic attached to a body-pack transmitter.

Handheld

Bodypack

Handheld transmitters

are built right into the handle of the microphone and are generally used by vocalists.